War Workers Engaged
To Artillery Officer
Arthur G. Mansur, of Burlington, Vt., has announced the engagement of his niece, Miss Sallie Louise Storrs, to Major Clifford Hildebrand Tate, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. She was graduated from Smith College in 1918 and was until recently engaged in war relief work at Camp McClellan, Alabama. During the war, Major Tate served with the 10th United States Field Artillery. He is now stationed at the port of embarkation, Hoboken. No date has been set for the wedding.

homes by the water and unable to obtain sufficient supplies.

Relief measures are being taken as rapidly as possible. Three trains with supplies arrived to-day from Kingsville, Robstown and Brownsville, but the situation is still serious. Thousands of personal belongings and the supplies of bedding and rations are being distributed among them. Many persons escaped only with the clothing they wore and not a few are clad only in bathing suits.

Several city bakers resumed operations to-day and their entire output is being turned over to the Red Cross.

Emergency Supplies Rushed
Two American Red Cross special army trains are reported to be bringing emergency supplies and a large detachment of relief workers, one of the trains from Laredo and the other from San Antonio. Arrangements were received that relief funds given by the Texas chapter of the Red Cross would be supplemented by national funds.

Alfred Fairbanks, of St. Louis, manager of the Southwestern division of the Red Cross, will direct the relief work.

Approximately 175 refugees have been received at Ocean, about thirty miles west of here, according to a telephone message. They had been carried across Nueces Bay on wreckage. All of them were suffering greatly from exposure. They are being cared for by citizens.

The damage wrought by the storm in the lower part of the business district is a study of destruction. The water, with the coming of daylight, the work of clearing the piles of debris that in many cases utterly blocked the streets was resumed. Hundreds of men from the cotton fields of the surrounding country have been brought here to assist in this work. The water has entirely receded from the streets, greatly facilitating the work.

A steady rain began falling at noon, turning the rapidly drying streets into a slush of mud and interfering with the clearing away of the debris. This will also add greatly to the suffering and privations of the thousands of destitute homeless people.

Churches and public and private buildings that escaped damage from the storm have been placed at the disposal of the various relief committees organized to care for the homeless and hungry.

The seven bodies recovered here early to-day were Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Helcher, prominent in real estate circles; E. W. Helcher, a newspaper man; D. Prater, city policeman; and three unidentified girls ranging from five to fifteen years.

Patrolman Prater lost his life while attempting to save Henry Spiker and twenty-six other men who were in his home when it was carried away by the tide. All of these twenty-six are still among the missing.

Loss of Cattle Heavy
In addition to the loss of human life, hundreds of cattle and thousands of birds and other game were drowned or killed by storm.

The first man rescued here following the storm was J. G. Griffin, sixty-six years old, a fisherman, of the reef, Corpus Christi, who fought for his life for nearly twenty-four hours before being rescued. During the heavy rain, and as the waters were rising, he had been in a home on North Beach to assist in moving an invalid woman to the second floor. While occupied at that task the waters rose four feet in as many minutes and the party, consisting of three men and the woman, took refuge on the roof. The house soon broke to pieces and he saw the people drown while he was unable to help them.

John S. Tanner, ward of his uncle, Z. C. Taylor, of North Beach, saw his uncle and aunt carried off by the flood in one direction while he went another. He was badly cut by timbers which struck him during the time he was in the water.

Three women, who sought refuge from the storm in the Federal building Sunday night, became marooned while the hurricane was at its height. They were attended by physicians who were among the hundreds of people who sought safety there. Reports to-day that the women were rescued.

37 Saved From Wrecked Ship; 11 Still Missing

HAVANA, Sept. 16.—Eighteen men of the crew of the British steamship Bayonette, from Galveston for Maracaibo, who had been picked up at sea from a lifeboat, were landed here to-day. Thirty others are missing.

The survivors were taken aboard Friday south-west of Egmont Key, off the Florida coast. They included the captain and the second officer of the ship. Among the missing is the first officer.

The Bayonette left Galveston on September 10, with cargo of wheat for the French port. She was a steamship of 4,000 tons gross, built in 1905 at Newcastle and owned by the Bay Steamship Company, Ltd., of London.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 16.—The steamship Caine arrived here to-day with nineteen survivors of the British steamship Bayonette, abandoned September 11 of Key West and believed to have foundered in the hurricane.

Eighteen survivors of the Bayonette have been landed at Havana, leaving eleven missing.

Cider Amendment Finally Inserted In Prohibition Bill

Senate Provision Permitting Manufacture in Homes of Light Wines Is Accepted by the House Conference

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The principal Senate amendment liberalizing the prohibition enforcement bill, to permit home manufacture for individual consumption of "non-intoxicating" cider and light wines, was accepted to-day by the House conference and placed finally in the bill subject to action on the conference report.

Disputes between the Senate and House conference went over temporarily, probably until late this week, when a complete agreement is expected. Enactment of the bill probably will be delayed until next week.

In adopting the Senate amendment authorizing the making of light wines and cider for domestic use, the conference today added a further liberalization of the bill, by authorizing the manufacture of "non-intoxicating" cider and wines for the purpose of conversion into vinegar.

The principal controversy yet to be settled is over the "burden of proof" in the case of persons found intoxicated. The House conference, it is said, is insisting that the burden of proof be upon the defendant, while the Senate conferees are reported to hold the opposite view.

Kills Wife and Himself
Brooklyn Cigarmaker's Act Is Ascribed to Jealousy
Max Moldenscheidt, forty-six years old, a cigarmaker, of 3229 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, last night went to the home of Mrs. Annie Johnson, 100 Ashley Street, South Beach Park, where his wife was confined, permitting a neighbor to shoot her in the head. He then turned the weapon upon himself and fired a shot into his right temple. Moldenscheidt died instantly and his wife died soon after she was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica.

Emil Moldenscheidt, a son, of 191 Union Hall Street, Jamaica, informed to-day that the husband of the woman who was killed was a jealous man and that they had been separated for the last three months.

1,100 Police Form Lafayette Post of American Legion

Lafayette Post of American Legion

Receive Charter on Second Day of Membership Drive of Veterans' Organization; 1st Division Officers Join

New members joined the American Legion in such numbers yesterday that officials at headquarters, 201 Madison Avenue, were unable to count them all. George Brokaw Compton, chairman of the New York County committee, who is directing the week's drive, said 100,000 members would be enrolled in Manhattan before Saturday night.

Throughout the country the campaign is for a minimum of 1,000,000 members or a maximum of 5,000,000. A feature of the drive yesterday was the organization of 1,100 war veterans in the Police Department. They received a charter, giving them the name of General Lafayette Post. Colonel Robert M. Watkins, who is in charge of post organizing, had about 2,000 veterans may form a post, and the posts may be established on a locality, social, business or military unit basis.

It is the purpose of the posts to establish sufficient members to establish local clubs. Harlem is to have the first clubhouse of this kind. It will be a memorial to the Harlem men who fought in the war. The location will be selected later.

Men of the 1st Division have established a post at the Hotel Biltmore. Among the members enrolled on an equal footing with the veterans are Major General Edward E. McGlachlin, Brigadier General Frank Parker, of the 1st Brigade, Colonel Francis Ruggles, of the 7th Field Artillery, Major C. S. Coulter, of the 18th Infantry, Captain S. F. Clark, of the 7th Field Artillery, and Captain C. H. Booth.

The membership committee yesterday established registration booths at the following places, which are authorized to collect dues: Vanderbilt Avenue and Forty-second Street, 111 Wall Street, 2381 Broadway, 340 Bowers, Broadway and Forty-second Street, 113 Lenox Avenue, 280 Canal Street, 401 West Twenty-third Street, 273 Broadway, Fourteenth Avenue, 104 Third Avenue, 104 Sixth Avenue, 740 Ninth Avenue, 1491 Lexington Avenue, 1945 Broadway, 2945 Broadway, 3111 Broadway, 1422 St. Nicholas Avenue, 104 Third Avenue, 104 Broadway, 224 Broadway, 2634 Eighth Avenue, 1754 Amsterdam Avenue, 3401 Broadway, 3773 Broadway, 1500 Third Avenue, 1224 Third Avenue, Thirty-third Street and Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue.

King George and Queen Are Leading Simple Life
British Rulers' Vacation at Balmoral Castle Devoid of Pomp or "Side"

LONDON, Sept. 16. (Correspondence of The Associated Press).—King George and Queen Mary are spending their holidays at Balmoral, Scotland, living a simple life, according to reports reaching London. So simple is the mode of life that some of the Highlanders who have attended the Queen Victoria's visits and recall the pomp of King Edward's day would be surprised to see a little of the old-time splendor restored.

King George and Queen Mary have a standard all their own. Were it possible for one to peep into Grathie Church on a Sunday morning without the knowledge of who was king and queen, and to be asked to pick out the most unadorned worshippers, King George and Queen Mary would be selected.

To put it in the popular language of the countryside, "they have no side," and as they drive out, walk out or visit the cottagers on No estate, they are quiet, homey and unassuming. The friends of the royal couple are touched by this simplicity, and when the king meets an old gillie or keeper who knew him when he was a niddy and on a visit to the castle, the Highlander is quick to know that those days when he was taught the love of the rod and the gun are not forgotten.

The simple life is being spent at Balmoral, and the Scottish people would say they have picked their company well.

Soldier Collects 1,000
Autographs of Notables in War
New York Tribune Foreign Press Bureau
"The London Daily Mail" mentions the case of Lance Corporal S. R. Williams, of the Australian Imperial Force, who claims to be the champion autograph collector of the world. He has now obtained his crowning triumph by securing the autographs of the king and queen.

During the war he has collected over 1,000 autographs of notable personalities.

American Customs Replace Chinese Funeral Ceremony

Wait of Tomtoms and Few Paper Strips Alone Mark Mott St. Service; 'Nearer, My God, to Thee' Played

The wailing of the tomtoms, which had for several hours drowned out the roar of the elevated from the funeral chamber and served to remind all Chinese to speak softly while the spirit of Lee Koo Man passed over to his ancestors, died away at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was silence for a moment in Mott Street. Then the jungle of heathen instruments gave way to "Nearer My God, to Thee."

Three hundred Chinese mourners bared their heads, while the American crowd ceased for a time its pushing and jostling.

Through the heavy gold and black draperies which shrouded the doorway of No. 5 Mott Street they brought the body of Lee Koo Man, in a plain black casket, and placed it in a plain American hearse, whose only Chinese trappings were sheets of paper over the lanterns inscribed with Chinese characters.

The Chinese have all American customs now, and "Charlie Boston," the man about town of Mott Street, who was pressed into service to explain the proceedings. Reporters who remained after the funeral were assigned to a column at least, with descriptions of the weird rites and strange paraphernalia which accompanied the funeral, and of the Chinese in the procession, and of the Chinese in the procession, and of the Chinese in the procession.

"Say, I heard they sent over a whole wagon full of booze and cakes to the cemetery, so this guy's spirit wouldn't get hungry before the funeral," interrupted a citizen, flushed with the pride of a sensational piece of gossip. "Charlie Boston" surveyed him coldly.

These are no mere superstitions, but Americans," he drawled, and the youth faded away.

Three hundred members of the Chinese Merchants' Association, with black bands on their arms, stood before the house while the funeral service was read within, and followed their old friend to his temporary grave in Evergreen Cemetery, Brooklyn.

The Christian minister of the Chinese Mission read the service.

Lee Koo Man was a great man in Chinatown. He was testified by the great quantities of floral emblems and the 150 funeral coaches which followed the hearse over the Williamsburg Bridge. For twenty-five years he had been a citizen of New York, and he had been active in many of the enterprises here for ten years.
